

Behind the Scenes at

Story no. 37 Chinese Whispers

On the left is the set up for the scene where Sergeant Tallon approaches the chinese shop.

In the picture below small magnets are used to keep the dolls house light (which has a magnet in the bottom) in place above the door. The light is battery powered.

The picture below shows how the magnets have been set up, with the light removed. The magnets don't fit through the hole in the technic brick. But even with a short distance between the two sets of magnets, they are powerful enough to attract each other and keep them in position.

