

Jim Fraser has to make a terrible choice—surrender to a killer, or watch British soldiers die!

During World War II, Sergeant Jim Fraser was falsely accused of being a traitor by four men of an Allied sabotage group. Now trying to clear his name, Fraser had tracked down one of the men, a Polish soldier named Valski, on the battle-torn slopes of Monte Cassino in Italy. But the Pole had countered Fraser's threats by calling down a mortar barrage on the British positions...

MARK OF A TRAITOR

